ACQ 3200

Adversarial Foreign Investment and National Security

Client Info

As part of the U.S. Department of Defense, the Defense Acquisition University (DAU) provides professional education to military and civilian acquisition personnel. DAU equips learners with the knowledge and tools needed to manage defense acquisition programs effectively, ensuring readiness and national security.

Challenge

The DoD urgently needed to train acquisition personnel on threats from adversarial foreign investments targeting sensitive U.S. technologies. Learners required a clear understanding of how these threats emerge and how to assess and mitigate risks through regulatory, strategic, and acquisition responses. With extensive source material and input from numerous subject matter experts, DAU needed a skilled partner to create an effective learning experience.

Solution

CTEC designed ACQ 3200 as a hybrid eLearning course combining live-action video and interactive cartoons. A mystery-solving team guides learners through concepts like the “Valley of Death” and Risk-Based Analysis using real-world-inspired cases. Knowledge checks unlock “ACQ Snacks” as learners apply tools like the Contracting Cone to national security scenarios—creating an immersive, engaging experience that mixes humor with policy insight.
